

Lab Report

ECPE 170 – Computer Systems and Networks – Fall 2012

Name: Erich Viebrock

Lab Topic: Network Socket Programming with Python (Lab #: 10)

Lab

Question #1:

What is the line that starts with #! doing? Where in ECPE 170 have you seen this before?

Answer:

#! is used for indicating what interpreter is used for the file. The symbols “#!” are used before the name of the interpreter. I remember seeing this when writing a bash shell script a few labs back.

Question #2:

Document the HTTP request and the server response when you manually download the HTML file at <http://ecs-network.serv.pacific.edu/ecpe-170/labs/> via Telnet.

(By "document", you should provide the full client request and the full server response. The script utility can make this capture easy for you - see below.)

This course will be organized around 10 in-class labs on varying topics. Many labs also have "pre-lab" assignments (i.e. homework) and/or "post-lab" assignments (i.e. homework or projects).

Lab Reports:

 Each lab requires you to write a lab report that answers key questions as you work through the lab. These reports should follow the format of the OpenOffice template provided here, with separate sections for pre-lab, lab, and post-lab questions. Answers to most lab questions can be short; a few sentences is generally sufficient.

Lab Submission:

The first lab (and only the first lab!) will be submitted via the Sakai site. For all other labs, everything (programs source code, lab reports, etc...) must be checked into the corresponding lab directory in version control and pushed to the online repository.

Lab Reports must be submitted in PDF format, not as OpenOffice files (Choose File->Export as PDF).

Deadlines:

Pre-Lab checkpoints are due at the beginning of class of the corresponding lab. A "checkpoint" is simply a quick verification that the requested activity was complete. Detailed grading will be done when the full lab report is submitted.

The full Lab Report (which includes sub-sections for the Pre-Lab, Lab, and the Post-Lab as necessary) is due by 11:59:59pm on the dates listed in the table below.

Grading:

To account for the varying amount of work required, each pre-lab, lab, and post-lab is worth a different point amount, as listed in the table below.

Question #4:

Document the HTTP request and the server response when you manually download the PNG image file at http://www.google.com/images/logos/google\_logo\_41.png via Telnet

Note: Is there a good reason why it doesn't make sense to include the server response (at least, the data portion) in your lab report?

Answer:

What was the best aspect of this lab?

Answer:

Interfacing with the Internet manually.

Question 2:

What was the worst aspect of this lab?

Answer:

Realizing the underlying mistake in my download program was a missing backslash.

Question 3:

How would you suggest improving this lab in future semesters?

Answer:

Include <http://www.tutorialspoint.com/python/> into the Python reference pages; wouldn't have been able to get through the lab without it!
